Curriculum

Unit Titles: Semesters 1 and II		Unit #: 1
Course or Grade Level: Piano Tech CP/II – 11-12		Length of Time: Approximately 3 weeks per unit
Essential Questions	Rationale: Students will be able to demonstrate growth in piano technique, music theory, and reading notation, which will enable them to successfully perform varied piano repertoire from different eras in history, and consequentially, improve their ability to listen to and appreciate piano music while supplementing other musical endeavors. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How does daily, independent practice assist me in reaching my goals as a player? • How do correct fingering, posture, and hand position affect my performance of a piece of music? • How can dynamics, tempo, and articulation assist me in communicating a piece of music effectively? • Why were you successful at performing your best piece? • How did performing successfully make you feel about that piece? • Where is the place I struggle most when learning new music and how can I approach it as a challenge instead of a struggle?
Content	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Students will further music reading skills, proper piano technique, and correct posture through daily practice. • Students will advance knowledge of music theory concepts necessary for discussions and repertoire. • Students will practice and perform appropriate repertoire for their skill level. • Students will listen to professional performances of renowned pianists and discuss interpretation of repertoire, performance practice, and relationship to music in a global context. • Students will be expected to prepare repertoire and participate in classroom recitals <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ When students are not performing they will be expected to critique their peers using the designated critique rubric. • Advanced students will explore the differences and similarities of piano repertoire from the Baroque, Classical, Romantic, and Modern eras.
Skills	Unit Learning Targets: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Students will be able to successfully negotiate repertoire with a high regard for all stylistic and/or musical nuances that appear in the score. • Students will utilize listening skills to critique piano performances from a global perspective. • Students will properly care for their physical and mental health. • Students will incorporate proper technique, posture, and a high level of focus to adequately prepare and perform repertoire. • Students will take into consideration the historical and cultural significance of each piece to successfully execute piano repertoire appropriate to performance practice.
Assessments	Summative Assessment: Students will perform in a recital for their peers and instructor once every three-four weeks depending on student progress and class interruptions (holidays, snow, events, etc...). The recitals indicate the progress of the students over a period of time and give the instructor an idea on how they are their skills are developing as a pianist. This is also a time where peers get to grade and critique each other. These assessments provide an opportunity for each student to perform in front of the

	class at least once a month. The instructor will assign the piece to be played at the recital the week it occurs to give the student adequate time to refine the piece. The instructor will work with the students to be sure they are successful in their performance by providing enough independent practice to prepare for these assessments. Formative Assessments: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Daily teacher assessment of posture, hand positioning, and consistent fingering. • Daily student assessment of problems they are facing in the repertoire and how to attack those problems. • Daily teacher assessment of motivation during independent practice time. • Teacher assessment of growth in each individual student’s repertoire execution and improvement of technical skills. • Teacher/student assessment of student’s ability to “present” themselves well in a recital performance. • Written assessments of music reading/theory skills
Interventions / differentiated instruction	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Student are divided by skill level and progress at different keyboards in the room so progress can be accurately measured and small groups can be instructed at different times of the class period.
